SANGRE, the journal

With 62 years of history, the Spanish Society of Hematology and Hemotherapy (SEHH, spanish acronym) is today an organization with important scientific contributions. Many of the nearly 2,800 professionals that make it up are internationally recognized figures and contribute to making hematology one of the most prestigious areas of Spanish medicine abroad. The SEHH consider that, for optimal patient care, it is essential to have an easy access to medical advances, to promote research and to have well-trained and highly qualified specialists in the hematological disease management.

SANGRE, the journal, is the official organ of scientific dissemination of the SEHH, and will be a four-numbers yearly online publication with full open access. The content of the journal will include original research articles and reviews. Its mission is to disseminate the results of research and knowledge in the field of hematology and hemotherapy around Spanish language related hematology, but it will be available in both, Spanish and English languages.

We are pleased to invite you to participate as the author of Sangre magazine, sending us your articles, in Spanish or English, to be peer-reviewed by an international committee of experts before publication. The fact of being a prestigious scientific journal with articles of high scientific quality and free access, ensures a wide distribution and visibility in the international academic environment. The editorial rules and information related to the submission of articles will be available shortly on the journal web platform.

We encourage you to contribute to the growth of SANGRE by sharing your articles with the international medical community.
